This book wasn't quite what I expected as I was hoping for something that may help me work with athletes. Some of these tips will be easily applied to my athletes but the true value will be as I hire and develop interns and assistants in the future. I was also able to come away looking at my place of employment a bit differently and looking at a bigger picture instead of what was right in front of me. I definitely think this is a useful book! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.

Excellent Book! By Keeke I've been practicing many of the leadership techniques mentioned in the book for years, but it was great to see them clearly described. Definitely great info for leaders who are building other leaders. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Too slow for me! By Donnie I am reading this required book as part of a curriculum in a Pastoral Training session. The book before this one, "Developing the Leader within You" was more readable at a better pace. For whatever reason, this book has started off slow and just went down hill from there. True, maybe it is just a mindset, and maybe I have to totally isolate myself from other distractions! The time frame given us to read these books are only a month, which is not near enough time to put any of these ideas into practice. John Maxwell, learned these lessons over a lifetime of being in management and being a Senior Pastor. I realize at some point I will have to put some or all of his words into action, but just not right now! As I am neither in a position or job to effectually put them to good use. On the brighter side, if you are looking to advance in the corporate structure, or to become part of the hierarchy of a religious organization, this is good reading. Enjoy

Why do some people achieve great personal success, yet never succeed in building a business or making an impact in their organization? John C. Maxwell knows the answer. "The greatest leadership principle that I have ever learned in over twenty-five years of leadership," says Maxwell, "is that those closest to the leader will determine the success level of that leader." It's not enough for a leader to have vision, energy, drive, and conviction. If you want to see your dream come to fruition, you must learn how to develop the leaders around you. Whether you're the leader of a non-profit organization, small business, or Fortune 500 company, Developing the Leaders Around You can help you to take others to the limits of their potential and your organization to a whole new level. www.DevelopingTheLeadersAroundYou.com
