Irene Hardill : Gender, Migration and the Dual Career Household (Routledge International Studies of Women and Place) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Gender, Migration and the Dual Career Household (Routledge International Studies of Women and Place):

This book explores the gender issues associated with international migration in dual career households. Adopting a feminist approach, the author links research in economics, sociology, management and business and human geography to explore post-industrial managerial and professional careers. Particular emphasis is placed on the way in which social mobility and spatial mobility are entwined. The author explores the location and mobility decisions of dual career households, examining their personal and household biographies as well as published statistics. Of essential interest to scholars of human geography, sociology and gender studies, this book will also interest those working in organizational, migration and urban studies.

About the Author Irene Hardill is Professor of Economic Geography at Nottingham Trent University.
