person - both long-distance and across town and within the same building. I will soon be leaving my own house and moving to smaller quarters and this terrific book will help greatly. There were so many new suggestions, each easy to understand but never before known to me. My reactions were: of course, wow! why didn't I think of that? How much simpler than my method, etc. Anyone moving will benefit from these ideas, all of which are helpful and not a single one that I disagree with. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Moving again? By Nancy Black A fun look at the trials of moving! Little details easily forgotten in the rush are shared in the many hints given from actual people who seem to spend their lives moving from one home to another! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Perfect for anyone moving By Crispina Miceli I have moved at least a dozen times, and yet I felt I needed some advice this time as I was moving alone. This is a great book, with tons of good shortcuts, anecdotes and even some hilarious stories.

If you are one of the forty million Americans who will move this year, you know the task can seem overwhelming. Now, there's help. How to Survive A Move offers hundreds of helpful and entertaining stories on moving from the real pros; everyday people who have moved (many of them over a dozen times!) and survived to tell their stories. Unlike other moving books that give the opinion of one or two experts, How to Survive a Move includes words of wisdom from hundreds of people both singles and families, nationwide who have been there, done that. Millions of people have survived moving, and so can you!

"...compiles hundreds of essential moving tips, real-life stories, and quotes by movers across the United States and Canada." -- Library Journal "...in the moving industry for 22 years. I was surprised at the new ideas I learned from this book!" -- Fred Wallace, President, ONE BIG MAN ONE BIG TRUCK MOVING COMPANY "...presented in tidbits that are easy to digest when you're more concerned with packing than spending hours reading..." -- San Diego Union-Tribune "...a good resource book for do-it-yourself movers to learn some of the best tips in making a move easier." -- Joanne Fried, U-Haul International, Inc. "I will definitely recommend How to Survive A Move to all of my clients." -- Cheri Hurd, Prudential Colorado Real Estate "This book is great AND . . . it's a great read!" -- Jeanne Moellendick, RE/MAX Specialists, Jacksonville, FL "...a compilation of suggestions from people who've successfully managed their own relocations." -- Knight Ridder/Tribune New Service "...this easy-to-digest book provides wisdom, dispensed mostly in single-paragraph bites, of hundreds of people who've lived through the experience. -- Newcomer's Handbook, First Books From the Publisher How to Survive A Move is the fifth title in the fast-growing Hundreds of Heads Survival Guide series. The series grew out of the simple idea that when you're facing any of life's major challenges, it's good to get advice from those who have gone before you. About the Author Hundreds of people were interviewed for How To Survive A Move. Their wisdom was compiled by editors Jamie Allen and Kazz Regelman. Jamie Allen is an editor and "chief headhunter" for the HUNDREDS OF HEADS survival guide series. He has worked as a producer in television news, and he spent five years as a senior writer and editor for CNN.com. Jamie survives his family's moves by pretending to know exactly what he is doing at all times, even when he doesn't have a clue. He lives in Atlanta with his wife and two children. Kazz Regelman has moved to new houses, cities, states, countries, and even continents more times than she can count. Her family relocated several times while she was young, and she has no idea how to answer when people ask, "Where are you from?" Once, as an adult with no place to stay in between houses, she snuck into her office late at night and slept in the shadow of the copy machine. (She was not comfortable.) Kazz graduated from Princeton University, studied in Taiwan on a Fulbright Scholarship, and worked in Tokyo as a correspondent for Variety Magazine. She lives in San Francisco with her husband and daughter.
