Taner Akan : Institutional System Analysis in Political Economy: Neoliberalism, Social Democracy and Islam before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Institutional System Analysis in Political Economy: Neoliberalism, Social Democracy and Islam:

The enduring debate on institutional pillars of contemporary political economies has gathered a noticeable momentum in terms of the change, path-dependence, and varieties of capitalism. By taking a methodological standpoint claiming that 'the current structure and the future of contemporary societies can only be understood by using an evolutionary and macro institutional approach that would explain the trajectories of social structures from a systemic perspective', this book first aims at formulating a novel analytical framework thus, Institutional System Analysis in Political Economy. This framework comprises, inter alia, a model of path-dependent changes, and then attempts to apply it to the case of the Ottoman-Turkish social system. In sum, the book develops an 'interaction-theoretic and evolutionarily-structured approach' with an aim to better capture the path-dependence and change of political, economic, and cultural action in terms of their intersectional dynamics.

'Where is the Turkish political economy going? In an impressive theoretical effort, Taner Akan posits the need and explores the possibilities for a synthesis between Islam, Kemalist social democracy and the neoliberalism of the AKP government. The book combines system theory with a theory of institutional change, in order to understand the history of Turkish society from the Ottoman Empire until today, identifying both impediments and opportunities for capitalist and post-capitalist development.' --Wolfgang Streeck, Max Planck Institute for the Study of Societies, Germany
