Matthew Joseph Gabel : Interests and Integration: Market Liberalization, Public Opinion, and European Union before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Interests and Integration: Market Liberalization, Public Opinion, and European Union:

Integration in Europe has been a slow incremental process focusing largely on economic matters. Policy makers have tried to develop greater support for the European Union by such steps as creating pan-European political institutions. Yet significant opposition remains to policies such as the creation of a single currency. What explains continued support for the European Union as well as opposition among some to the loss of national control on some questions? Has the incremental process of integration and the development of institutions and symbols of a united Europe transformed public attitudes towards the European Union?
