From Cambridge University Press : Options for Global Trade Reform: A View from the Asia-Pacific (Trade and Development) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Options for Global Trade Reform: A View from the Asia-Pacific (Trade and Development):

Despite the decision of the WTO members to launch a new round of negotiations at their Doha Ministerial in November 2001, developing countries continue to have very real concerns on a number of key issues. The successful completion of the Doha trade round and the realization of the goals of its Development Agenda represent a major challenge for both the developed and the developing world. The primary aim of this volume is to improve understanding of the issues, the objectives of policy and the options for trade policy reform particularly as they impact on the Asia-Pacific region. A team of authors from developing and developed countries in the Asia-Pacific identify ways in which progress might be made on the key negotiating topics, including market access and related issues in agriculture, non-agriculture merchandise and in trade in services.

About the Author Will Martin is Lead Economist of the Development Research Group at the World Bank, Washington DC. Mari Pangestu is Director of the Centre for Strategic and International Studies, Jakarta, Indonesia.
