G. Tholen : The Changing Nature of the Graduate Labour Market: Media, Policy and Political Discourses in the UK before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Changing Nature of the Graduate Labour Market: Media, Policy and Political Discourses in the UK:

The assumptions made in the media regarding graduate skills and occupations are no longer valid within the changing educational context. This book traces seven key trends that shape the graduate labour market and reveals that their effects contradict the conceptualisation of the graduate labour market which dominates media and policy discourses.

About the Author Gerbrand Tholen is a British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow at the Department of Education, University of Oxford, UK. His work focuses on the relationship between higher education and the labour market.
